You are going to hear a story about Ahmed.

Listen and for each item, write a short answer (not more than FOUR WORDS).

Once upon a time, in a friendly neighborhood, there lived a young boy named Ahmed. He really wanted to learn how to ride a bike, just like his big brother. Ahmed asked his dad for a brand-new bicycle.

When his dad surprised him with a shiny red bike, Ahmed's heart raced with joy. He couldn't wait to ride down the streets. But like with any new adventure, learning how to ride a bike wasn't always easy.

Ahmed swayed on the bike, trying to find his balance. He fell many times, scraping his knees and hurting his elbows. It made him feel frustrated. He thought that maybe he would never be able to ride like his brother.

Ali, his big brother, offered to help. He told him that he would hold the bike from behind while Ahmed rode. Ahmed was happy with this suggestion and decided to try. When he rode the bike, it seemed very easy with his brother holding him from behind.

He repeated this several times and did not fall. The fifth time, Ahmed turned back and did not find his brother holding him, so he became confused and fell.

His brother said to him: "I wasn't holding you the last two times. You were riding the bike yourself and you didn't fall. Gather your confidence and try driving alone." Ahmed tried to drive alone, and he succeeded without falling. Here he realized that the obstacle was only in his head. Since that day, Ali has been riding his bike through the neighborhood streets and having fun.
